Supervisors take long, hard look at budget needs

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County's Tourism Development Bureau wants $25,000 more, and the county's community education program wants $5,000 more next year.

It's that time of the year when supervisors will need to make some tough decisions before adopting an operating budget for the next fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

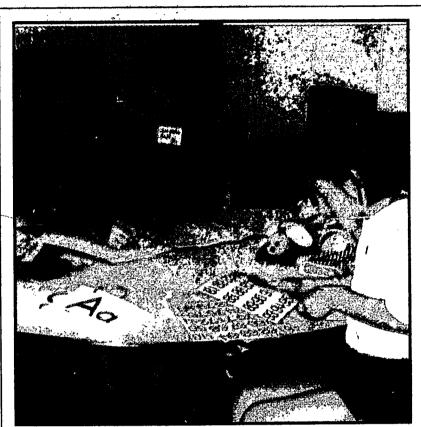

Supervisors have scheduled a workshop Aug. 10 to mull over next year's budget with County Comptroller Patty Greer, but no department heads have been invited. In fact, the word went out months ago that supervisors won't entertain any requests for substantial increases to any department's budget.

But, that didn't stop two agency directors from coming before supervisors Monday to ask for more funds to run their programs.

And, Beth Carriere, who heads the county's Tourism Development Bureau, brought an entourage of people with her to plead her case.

Last year, Carriere added a little levity to budget hearings when she came before supervi-

City facing cost overruns on various projects

BY MARY G. SEILEY

With millions of dollars in the pipeline for drainage improvements, Bay St. Louis city officials are shuffling some monies to meet some major cost overruns-holding their breath there'll be enough to complete their plans.

"It's a concern we've had all along," Mayor Eddie Favre said Monday. "...It's not going to be easy. We're doing everything we can."

A significant part of the overruns concerns averting what officials fear could be "un-forecast erosion" along the channel slopes that are key in the project.

"Instability could cause severe erosion," engineer James Chiniche told City Council members in a workshop session Monday. "We're re-evaluating the way the ditches will be built."

To keep the project funds from eroding as well, city officials are pulling some $500,000 from a revenue bond issue that was passed for utility upgrades and other capital projects, and putting the money into the drainage bucket.

In addition, Chiniche said he's persuaded Colom Construction to cut some $240,000 off the

Bay gets preservation plan

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A sweeping proposal to promote historic preservation in Bay St. Louis emerged Monday in draft form, wrapping up almost a year's work by a citizens' advisory committee.

City Council plans to go over the proposal in detail at its Aug. 17 meeting.

Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society, presented the document as chairman of the citizens' study group which drafted it. Saying the committee saw no need to "reinvent the wheel," Gray said the bulk of the suggested regulations come from Natchez' preservation or-

Most of the provisions have been tested in court, he said, and found to be valid under Mississippi law.

The plan calls for a 9- to 12-member commission to oversee preservation matters, first proposing what areas of the city will be designated historic. With more than 500 structures now listed on the National Register of Historic Places, the proposed preservation area is likely to be an extensive one.

The commission also would propose specific structures and sites for designation as historic, inventorying all property within the boundary of the district and evaluating its significance to the district.

Once designated as an historic property, special protections are in effect for the property. No exterior alteration will be allowed, or relocation, or demolition, unless it's with the commission's blessing.

In addition, no new construction would be allowed, without an okay from the commission.

If permission for any such work is denied, the applicant would

No parking on beach

City enforces ordinance

BY BETSY GAGNET

The Waveland Police Department is cracking down on illegal parking on the beach.

Police are enforcing a 1968 city ordinance which makes it unlawful for "any person to drive any automobile, truck, motorcycle, motorbike, or other motor vehicle onto the beachfront within the limits of the Town of Waveland, Mississip-

The ordinance sets a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50 or up to five days in jail or both, for those convicted of the violation.

Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell called the illegal parking a safety issue.

"Kids are coming off the beach from behind cars, and you can't see them," Varnell said. "We're going to ask (people) to move their vehicles, and citations will be issued to people who don't adhere to the warnings," he said. "People who refuse to move their vehicles will be arrested for failure to obey a lawful command by a police officer."

In other news from Waveland, the Board of Aldermen approved the appointment of former Public Works Director Steve Landry as the Ward 1 Commissioner on the Planning and Zoning Commission. Landry replaces Jim Odom who resigned last month.

The board awarded the bid for a used tandem dump truck in the amount of $28,500 to David Cook Trucks and Equipment, contingent upon inspection and approval by Public Works Director Ray Eaton.

Arrests lead to recovery of items

BY B. R. HAWKINS

Waveland Polic Department thwarted a burglary and tied up loose ends on three others early Saturday morning, August 1, according to police reports.

Waveland Police Chief James A. Varnell said officers responded to a burglary alarm at Pinky's Pawn Shop, 552 Hwy. 90, at approximately 5 a.m. Saturday and found the rear of the building had been forcibly entered. Varnell said a search of the area surrounding the building flushed out suspects Zina Stubbs and Ernest Guyton, Jr. who had been hiding in the woods. Varnell said Stubbs, 25, of Waveland surrendered to officers but Guyton, 20, of Kiln attempted to flee.

Officer David LeGross and Brent Anderson, an off-duty, part-time officer, gave chase on foot and arrested Guyton on Old Spanish Trail.

Investigations into the burglarly at the pawn shop led officers to recover items stolen from Lonnie's Locksmith, 556 Hwy. 90; The American Legion Post 77, 208 Coleman Ave.; and Kiddie Care Trainin' Station, 919 St. Joseph Street, all in Waveland.

Stubbs and Guyton were charged with four counts of burglary of a business. Both suspects, according to Varnell, were on probation from a previous arrests for burglary in Kiln and are being held without bonď.

Investigator Brett Ladner, Officers Glen Volkman and David Allen, Sgt. C. J. Lick and K9 Arno were also involved in the investigation.

Artist Elizabeth Schafer's acrylics, along with Susan Carver's metal sculptures, will be featured at a reception in conjunction with the Second Saturday Artwalk Series at Serenity Gallery, 126 Main Street, Bay St. Louis from 6-8 p.m. Saturday, August 8.

Artists featured at reception

Elizabeth D. Schafer, a selfproclaimed frustrated musician, and Susan Carver, an area metal sculptor, will be featured at a reception at Serenity Gallery, 126 Main Street, Bay St. Louis from 6-8 p.m., Saturday, August 8. The reception is in conjunction with the Bay St. Louis Second Saturday Artwalk

Schafer's work has been noted for both her subject matter and techniques. By applying layers of acrylic glazes, she builds areas of transparency and opacity, choosing bold, striking colors and strong lines to provide movement throughout her paintings.

Carver's metalsmithing is an ongoing labor of love. Working in copper and brass and using the techniques of chasing, repose and brazing, she creates one-of-kind art pieces and limited edition works.

Second Saturday Artwalk features exhibits, grand opening

The 1998 Second Saturday tor David Delk Artwalk Series continues this month on Aug. 8 in the Old morabilia was selected from a Town district of historic Bay St. Louis. Over 40 participating galleries, shops, and restaurants will stay open late for strolling shoppers and visitors.

Galleries will feature openings and receptions, while each restaurant will offer "Second Saturday Specials" from their regular menus.

Each section of Old Town will be highlighted by different "hot spots," special events which generally begin in the late afternoon.

The first and second blocks of Main Street will be limited to pedestrian traffic from 6-10 p.m. Parking is available on Beach Boulevard, Court, Second and Toulme streets. This months hot spots include:

Artist Micky Evans at Gifts by the Bay, 113-A North Beach Boulevard showcases "The Whimsy Collection," an assortment of hand-painted tiles and accessories. Unable to find decorative tiles for her kitchen, Evans created her own collection of quirky characters in clay which she fashions into ceramic tiles, trivets, decorative wall pieces, inlaid tables and murals.

She also has a selection of decorative and functional handpainted pottery. Evans will be on hand this Second Saturday from midday on to introduce herself and her work at Gifts by the Bay.

Weaver's exhibit featured

Nationally recognized weaver and clothing designer Barbara Lundy Stone will be showing her newest work at Quarter Moon Gallery, beginning Saturday, Aug. 8, in conjunction with the Old Town 2nd Saturday Artwalk.

The collection, entitled "A Weaver's Garden," consists of one-of-a-kind pieces capturing the brilliant colors of flowers in bloom.

A weaver for over 25 years, Stone found the inspiration for this collection in her backyard garden.

"I've worked in this garden almost 12 years and it's become part of the evolution of my work. It contains a mix of indigenous wild-flowers and some 'tamer' varieties of flowers, all in vivid colors.

The richly colored vests and evening jackets begin with Ms. Stone hand-dying the fibers herself.

Her favorite fibers are chenille, blended with cotton and rayon.

The opening reception will take place at Quarter Moon Aug. 8 during the 2nd Saturday Artwalk. Refreshments will be served 5-8 p.m.

For information, call Ellis Anderson at 467-7279.

This exhibit coincides with the grand opening of "More Good Stuff," an assortment of more 20th century bric-a-brac, retro, vintage and collectible kitsch in the newly renovated annex of Paper Moon.

Peoples Bank will again sponsor live music in Old Town. This month the popular rhythm and blues band, "Bo and Dee" will perform in the 200 block of Main Street and promise to keep the block party going with dancing in the streets from 6-9

CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This evening from 5 to 7 will be the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Business After Hours for August at the Bay-St. Louis-Hancock County Library. Those attending are asked to use the Ulman Avenue entrance.

The co-sponsors for this month's Business After Hours are Wellman and the Library Foundation of Hancock County.

As many of you know, Wellman's multi-million plant is under construction at the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

This will be a good time to meet Pete Woodie of Wellman and his crew who have been involved with the construction and will be operators of the plant when it goes on line later this year.

Our library staff and foundation members have been very busy this past year, and as many of you know, there will be a new library facility in Kiln in the near future.

Admission is two business cards for the Business After Hours, and the event is open to chamber members and guests.

I hope to see you this evening.

I received a letter from Candice L. Cook, the volunteer coordinator for the therapeutic riding center, Gaits to Success, in Kiln.

Gaits is a non-profit riding center for people with mental, physical, emotional and learning disabilities.

I have been to functions at Gaits to Success, and just to see the faces of the young riders is something in itself.

Ms. Cook's letter is seeking volunteers to help at Gaits, which is virtually an all-volunteer organization.

She said no training is needed for someone to volunteer at Gaits, as they only need a desire to help a disabled student ride a horse with joy, in comfort and safety. She said that riding gives the disabled person a feeling of freedom, independence and awareness of self that is otherwise difficult to achieve by conventional therapy.

Volunteers are also needed to train as certified instructors, support annual fund-raising events, recruit new students, and work facilities management issues. So the field is open to all types of talents which can be utilized.

If you feel you want to volunteer for Gaits to Success, give Mr. Cook at call at 228-385-9752 for further School bells ring tomorrow for Bay-Waveland District and Monday for Hancock County District students.

It seemed to be such a short summer. But, that is almost behind us as students begin the 1998-99 school sessions.

Administration, principals, staff, teachers, teacher assistants, and everyone associated with the school facilities have been busy getting everything in order for the youngsters' first day of the class. Parents have been busy, too, getting school clothing and supplies, and I am sure there will still be much more to be gathered as students move into their first week of studies.

Just think the number of school buses which are néeded for transportation in the two school districts, and each bus has to have a driver, plus subs.

The opening of school will also create more traffic on our highways and roadways, so motorists need be aware of youngsters on their way to and from school.

School zones are now being policed, and motorists need to observe all speed limits.

It is hoped that each and every child will have a safe and successful school year.

As many of you know, Jitney Jungle is promoting a Gold Card Community Gift Program Sunday, August 9, through Saturday October 3.

Aileen Sauzer, president of the Hancock County Food Pantry, submitted her organization for consideration in the Jitney Gold Card Community Gift Program, and the Food Pantry has been enrolled and accepted in the program.

Sauzer is really elated that the Food Pantry has been accepted as a participant and is hoping that all Jitney Jungle customers will designate the Food Pantry by giving their exclusive account number (EAN) 998765030632, starting Sunday.

Customers only have to give the number one time with their Gold Cards at Jitney, Sauzer reports. Jitney will keep a running total of purchases by participating members and will give the Jitney Jungle Charitable Foundation 2% of the purchases accumulated by those who designate the pantry as their charity over the eight-week period, Sauzer said.

Sauzer is busy getting the Food Pantry's EAN number out to everyone possible.

To give you and idea, the Hancock County Food Pantry serve 397 persons during July, and the numbers seem to increase each month.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Waveland pier user says charity begins at home

Dear Editor: What will a dollar buy you today?

Not very much, unless you're in Waveland.

For a dollar you can visit the safest and friendliest pier on the Gulf Coast with 24-hour Rangers on duty.

These Rangers not only ensure your safety, but they will help fishermen get their catch off their hook, put band-aids on cuts, call moms for rides and be a friend to anyone who needs one. This is the only place children can go, and parents know they will be safe, thanks to the dedication of our Rangers.

If you like to fish, for the small price of $3, you can fish for 24 hours.

As a family living in Waveland we prefer to pay the $25 a year for membership.

We are a family of five. We have one permit for three of us, and the other two do walk on passes as they are over 18. None of us are fishermen, but we all enjoy going out to the pier to sit and watch the sunset and visit with friends on the pier.

Most of our friends we met on the pier when we moved here five years ago.

The Waveland pier is like the front porches in New Orleans. Everyone comes out to talk. The only difference is our pier is safe.

This is why I was so disappointed in the letter you printed from a tourist visiting Waveland.

Everyone complains that the price of everything is going up, and when you offer them the are opportunity to enjoy a great 24 hours for $1, they still aren't satisfied. I can only guess that people who visit small cities such as ours feel we don't have overhead, that everyone works on a volunteer basis.

I would much rather see the city give the senior citizens who live on a fixed income a discount on their pier permits, rather than families that have an income that allows them to take a two-week vacation. Charity begins at home.

Sincerely, Sandra T. Lytle Waveland

'God don't like ugly,' woman All-Star coach says

Dear Editor

A couple of weeks ago, I had the privilege of being the manager of the Waveland 9-10 All Star baseball team.

Although we went two games and were put out, our kids played two great games, and the City of Waveland should be as proud of them as I am. Some parents, however, were a different story.

The problem, you see, is that I am a woman. Although I realize this is the 1990's where women are supposed to be treated

It began when my regular season team, which was managed and coached by myself and another woman, won first place in the division. In fact I had one parent, a man, take his child off my team after two practices simply because we were women and, according to him, didn't know what we were doing.

They play ball to have fun and learn a little something along the way, like good sportsmanship and team spirit.

Baseball is a team sport, not an individual sport. It takes a team to win games.

These certain parents, and they know who they are, made the two games we played so miserable for the kids and myself, they ought to be ashamed of themselves.

During the second game we played, I had two children come off the field crying, because of the comments these parents were making in earshot of the

Waveland resident has her fill of Clinton preoccupation

To the Editor:

No true, loyal American can understand why the most powerful man in the world, president of the greatest country in the world, is allowed to be degraded, dishonored, treated like a criminal, causing pain to his wife and daughter, because of a shameless woman wanting attention and claiming she had sex with Bill Clinton, President of the United States - and a married man!

Reports tell that she's had sex with married men.

Years ago, a man or woman caught having sex with someone's husband or wife could have been shot, and the law would do nothing about it. What a cruei, disgraceful situation, probably caused by Republicans, fake Christians or hate Clinton people."

Who is paying Starr and the other lawyers the million dollar salaries? We taxpayers? Stop it! Enough is enough! Saddam is still laughing, because of this filthy sex problem of the President. Saddam still has bombs to blow up the world. Americans, Democrats, stand up and fight for President Clinton. He's a kind and caring man who helps our country. Thank you,

Forty Years Ago

JULY 31, 1958

-- "Crime Doesn't Pay" Is Proven at Saturday's Kangaroo Kourt Session. A severe and stern judge and five-man jury dealt out still penalities to a group of "centennial lawbreakers" in the second session of the Kangaroo Court held on the courthouse lawn Saturday. A large group of spectators witnessed the session of the Kourt with black-robbed, white-wigged John Rutherford presiding as judge. The "culprits," Mayor John Scafide, Junior Johnson, Al Summy, Frank Trapani, Gerald Favre, Joseph Colson, Kenneth Whitfield and George Favre were placed in the "iail" and pulled through the city's streets and even were paraded as "examples" through the streets of Waveland. "District Attorney" Jake Morreale charged the prisoners, and the verdicts were rendered by the jury composed of Jose Scafide, J.F. Green, Cecil Williams, W.G. Miller and Harold Saucier. Among the charges, His Honor, Mayor Scafide was charged with seeing that city employees wore beards; Deputy Sheriff Gerald Favre was charged with not wearing his beard; Funeral Director Kenneth Whitfield faced charges of not embalming his "customers" and burying several of his customers alive; Tavern Owner Trapani faced charges of "fleecing his customers" by cutting his spirits and putting too large a collar on his beers; "You are guilty of having bugs in your whiskers," Merchant Joe Colson's verdict read; Commercial Artist Al Summy face more charges than any of the other prisoners. Being a "Southern Yankee," probably one of the most serious charges, was first hurled at Summy; "short changing banking customers" was responsible for Johnson's sentence while Al Vetter was found guilt of impersonating an officer. Sentences ranged from "doing time in the stocks," messy egg rubs and facial massages with creamy lemon pies.

Inmates in holding pattern costing county thousands

BY ED LEPOMA

Inmates awaiting trial are costing Hancock County thousands of dollars, but Sheriff Ronnie Peterson says there's little he can do about it.

On Monday, supervisors, concerned about overruns in the sheriff's jail budget, called Peterson in to explain the situation.

Less than two weeks ago; Peterson came to supervisors to explain that the county jail is overcrowded with 135 inmates, about 25 of which are sleeping on the floor in some cells.

Peterson said, "We don't have too much control over the situation." He explained that it normally takes up to a year from the time of a person's arrest to indictment or trial. "Until that time, they are county prisoners. and the county has to pay for them," said Peterson. He said the county could be subject to a suit if it doesn't provide for the medical needs of prisoners in Jail Warden Larry Willis said one prisoner awaiting trial has heart problems, and has already cost the county $30,000 in medical expenses. The overcrowding is also impacting the cost of feeding prisoners, said Willis. The warden said figures show this year 2,000 more inmates came through the jail compared to last year.

Peterson said another factor impacting the costs is a state law, that prohibits prisoners from bonding out for second and third offenses, and requires them to serve 85 percent of their time. The sheriff also said the state is not accepting new inmates at the state penitentiary in Parchman, so he's also housing some state prisoners.

Later, County Comptroller Patty Greer told the Echo that jail expenditures are at 95 percent of what was budgeted for the present fiscal year, and there's two months to go before a new budget is adopted.

Greer said approximately $1,552,000 was budgeted for operating the county jail, and $1.478,000 has been spent so

The Sheriff said he expects some grant funds to come in before the end of the fiscal year, and he'll get additional federal money for housing illegal immigrants for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The Sheriff's department actually has four separate budgets, according to Greer. Besides the jail, a total $1,557,000 was budgeted this year for overdepartment

Greer said spending is now $1,419,000, representing "91" percent of the funds budgeted. Spending is 102 percent over budget at the inmate farm, she said. A total $10,491 was allocated for operations, and, so far. $10,665 has been spent.

Another $7,027 was budgeted for civil service training, and so far, Greer said $5,150 or 78 percent of budgeted funds have been

Overall, the sheriff's department has now spent 93 percent of its combined budgets, and Greer said spending should be around 83 percent at this point. "He's running about 10 percent all operations of the sheriff's over his budget," said Green If there is a shortage at the end of the fiscal year Sept 30, Supervisors will have to dip into surplus funds or the general funds to balance the books.

Peterson also told supervisors of another pending problem. He said a 1981 federal court case filed by an attorney he identified as Ryan Welch requires that all county jails holding inmates for the state must be state-certified.

Peterson said Welch is offering to state certify Hancock County's facility for a charge of Supervisors asked County Attorney Gerald Gex to get an opinion on the issue from the state Attorney General's Office.

Pass Christian Isles warned to boil water

BY ED LEPOMA

A state Health Department official advises residents of Pass Christian Isles to continue to boil their water until the "all clear" signal is given.

About 500 residents of the unincorporated area at the westernmost tip of Harrison County got a crude warning last. Saturday that something was wrong with their water, supplied by the privately-owned Johnson Utility Co.

Several handmade signs directing residents to "Boil Water Before Drinking" were posted on trees along Ponce deLeon Boulevard. The street is the main artery leading into the upscale subdivision that is located on the north side of U.S. Hwy. 90, just before the bridge going over the Bay of St. Louis into

Hancock County. Residents were irate over being notified by posted signs, rather than a personal call from those who operate the water system. "That's a hell of a thing," said Daniel Dominguez, who lives on Park View Lane. And, the Pass Christian Police Department was swamped by calls from residents anxious over the situation, but dispatcher Denise Dedeaux said all she could do was to advise them to boil their water.

Wendy Vuyovich, regional engineer with the state Health Department in Gulfport, said Johnson Utilities would take water samples and send them for testing before an all clear signal could be given.

Asked whether allowing the company to take its own water samples was akin to letting the fox guard the hen house. Vuyovich said it was standard procedure.

"Private (water) utilities take samples every month and send the results to us," (the Health Department) she said.

She said the water provider would need samples taken from two consecutive days that show the water is suitable for drinking before the ban could be lifted.

Vuyovich said the samples are sent to the state Health Department in Jackson for analysis or to a state-approved testing laboratory, and testing at the lab takes at least two

"So, my advice now is to keep boiling the water until we get the lab test results back," said Vuyovich.

The Echo made several calls to Mike Johnson, who is in charge of maintenance for Johnson Utilities, but he did not

Carrigee attends debates

Bill Carrigee, Bay St. Louis building and code enforcement officer, has recently participated in the Southern Building Code Congress International mid-year hearings in Birmingham.

Thousands of Congress members are brought together to debate proposed changes to the building trade codes that are used by most cities and counties to set the level of standards for safe building construction. The group will return in October to vote for the final changes.

"We debated 24 changes to the Fire Safety Code, over 200 changes to the life safety and general building codes and, of particular interest to our area, the 33 hurricane resistent construction changes." Carrigee

Red Cross disaster services seek shelter, damage assessment volunteers

Hancock County Red Cross Emergency Services has issued a call for volunteers of all ages and walks of life to assist with emergency shelter operations and damage assessment-

Bertina Burge, Hancock County's Red Cross representative, issued a call for volunteers to swell the ranks of her existing voluntary work force in times of disaster

"When disaster strikes our county we need to be fully prepared. At the moment we have sufficient trained volunteers to open our shelters and keep them manned for a day or so.

"We are in need of training additional people in the event our shelters have to remain open for days, weeks, or longer," Burge explained.

With Hancock County not having experienced a major natural or man-made disaster since the advent of Hurricane Camille in 1969, a storm changing the face of the Coast forever, many of the then volunteers have dwindled away until the remaining nucleus is tightly stretched to meet an extended

Burge explained, "When disaster threatens, the local Red Cross in cooperation with Civil Defense, begins to open its emergency shelters for people who cannot, or for one reason or another chose not to evacuate the area. Our disaster volunteers are immediately called in to meet this demand.

"As the threat increased, more shelters are opened, each presenting its own demands, and each having to be prepared to operate, at least initially, on its own resources.

The concerned shelters, a list of which will be publicized as conditions warrant, designed only to provide for emergency accommodation are located in certain schools, church halls, or other public buildings. Persons utilizing these shelters are expected to provide their own blankets, necessities, children's wants (including toys and games) and above all, food and drink for at least the first, eight to 12 hours of their stay.

"We do all humanly possible for shelter users, but it should be remembered, the first job for all of us is to survive the disaster and help as many people as we can do the same. Then we. will start sorting ourselves out. and together face the task of rebuilding," Burge said. "She added, "It may be awhile before anybody from outside can get to us, depending on the situation, and it is then we need to all come together and start our future anew."

One of the prime tasks facing the Red Cross and other disaster agencies before clean-up can begin is damage assessment. Speedy, thorough and accurate determination of damage and assessment thereof is the key to speedy recovery, be the disaster large or small.

Damage assessment activities include gathering, analyzing, and distributing detailed information on the precise nature and degree of disaster

The information gathered serves Red Cross and other agencies to: establish priorities for providing assistance and where needs are most urgent; determine staffing and supply needs, both as to quantity, and probable duration of need; getting reliable information to others, including relatives and victims, government units, other relief organizations; estimate relief costs and provide basis for fund-raising decisions to meet these costs; verify the damage sustained and suffered by families requesting Red. Cross disaster assistance

"Building inspectors, estimators, contractors, construction employees, building suppliers and all related trades are invaluable as volunteers here. Almost instant decision has often to be made on destroyed beyond repair, repairable, and relocatable housing and business

"Our damage assessment teams must be in the field just as soon as they can be assembled and roads cleared Their work is paramount to speedy recovery and forms the baseline for most of what follows," Burge concluded.

Red Cross training officers are getting set to organize shelter and damage assessment classes just as soon as sufficient volunteers are available.

Persons wishing to answer this call should call the Red Cross office at 467-7609 in Bay St. Louis or 896-4511 in Biloxi to register.

Hot weather may bring Southern Pine Beetles

By Mark Jamieson County Forester

Many landowners are concerned that the unusually hot weather will bring on an attack of Southern Pine Beetles.

"Our aerial surveys are picking up a few small spots. There's not a major problem yet, but activity could pick up," said County Forester Mike Jamieson.

"If we spot beetles on your property, we'll inform you, but we advise you to be on the look-out yourself," he said.

Here's what to look for: clumps of trees with yellow needles and small globs of resin shaped like tiny crayfish mounds clinging to the bark. These are known as "pitch

Treat a beetle spot like a doctor treats a cancer: cut it out before it spreads.

Cut all the fading trees, those that have pitch tubes but are not yet fading, and — this is very important — all trees in a 100-foot wide buffer zone in front of the direction of spread.

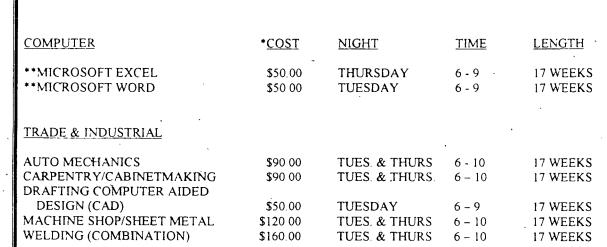

This stops the spot from spreading because the beetles must have moist inner pine bark in order to survive. They are poor fliers and die quickly when exposed to the hot sun, or predators eat them when they're flushed into the open.

Once the infested tree is cut, the inner bark dries out quickly, and the insects are forced to go to a nearby live pine tree. Since all the nearby pine trees have been cut (thus the importance of the buffer zone), the insects are forced out into the open to meet their fate.

"You can salvage the trees you cut. There's no indication that transporting infested trees can spread the insects," Jamieson said. "It's best not to cut dead trees, the insects left them long ago. Leave them standing as woodpecker den trees. Woodpeckers are primary predators of Southern Pine Beetles."

Health Fair

Save Our Children hosted a health fair to celebrate the conclusion of their summer program recently. Health care professionals from across the county participated in the awareness program. Additionally children were measured and weighed to determine if they were in normal ranges.

Health professionals share experiences with children

Save Our Children hosted a health fair to celebrate the conclusion of the summer program. Snakes, electricity and environmental hazards are all real aspects of our lives. While attending the fair, youths learned about these potential dangers as well as habits that contribute to a healthy lifestyle.

Exhibitors from the local community included Ida Macuick and Keith Hoda of Coast Electric Power Company, who showed a model of how electricity can be hazardous when working and playing around electric lines; Doug Knapp of Gulf Oaks Hospital, presented information on self esteem and drug education; Dave Burrage of Coastal Research and Extension Center gave information and demonstration on coastal fishing; and Dr. John Guyton, Mississippi State University Extension 4-H specialist, presented information and a demonstration on the coastal environment using the enviroscape model to demonstrate water contamination.

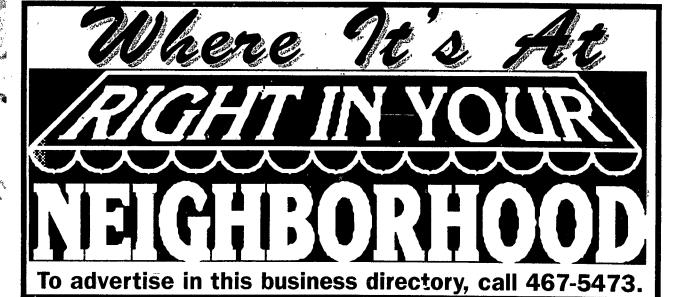

Also, Janet McQueen and Anna DeMarco of Hancock Medical Center, delighted the audience by giving the children a chance to "doctor" sick teddy bears in a teddy bear clinic; Penny Bishop of Professional Home Health, provided the service of measuring height and weight of each child to determine if they were in the normal range for their age; Chantel Graham of Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse, gave each child valuable information concerning violence in the home, drug addiction and antismoking information; and Marilyn Bailey, area health education agent with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, presented information on the four poisonous snakes found in Hancock County.

County students to graduate Miss. State

Jennifer L. Dagnall and Hendrick W. Daman, both of Hancock County will be among the 800 Mississippi State students who are candidates for degrees at the conclusion of the university's 1998 summer session.

Graduation exercises will begin at 10 a.m. Aug. 7 in the Newell-Grissom Building. MSU President Malcolm Portera will deliver the commencement address.

Portera is a West Point native and Mississippi State alumnus who became the university's 16th chief executive in January.

Waveland Elementary School principal, Dr. Donna Jones, recently returned from the Principal's Center at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. The 10-day continuing education program brought her together with 150 public, private, independent, parochial and church high school administrators from all over the the

Jones said she has made contacts with principals in Australia, The Netherlands, Saudi Arabia and Malaysia, as well as those here in the United States. "At any point in any given day, we can consult with one another via the internet," she said, "This kind of networking really does make the world a small place."

The purpose of the Principal Center at the Harvard Graduate Schoo! of Education, Jones said, is to give top administrators a greater perspective of their schools and careers, as well as introduce them to the newest and most successful trends in education. "We received a certificate at the end of the program as well as credit toward our recertification, but those are secondary to the amount of information and perspective we received from being able to talk to our peers from other locations.'

"At first, I was a bit shy and careful and wanted to make a good impression." Jones recounted, "I felt as if I was representing Mississippi, and I had to be a good ambassador I put a lot of pressure on myself, because I guess I felt we might not be able to compete. But once we started talking about our students, I knew we were in there with the best of them, because Waveland Elementary students are on the cutting edge of technologies and research.

Jones said she brought back with her wonderful memories and worldwide network and the knowledge of knowing that she is the 'head learner' for her faculty and staff.

"If I am successful in conveying to my faculty, staff, parents and students that I am open for learning and every day is a chance to improve upon the day before, then I am setting an example that is positive and encouraging. Plans for an art center on Second Street were modified, then approved, by Bay St Louis City

But council members balked at a separate request for a 22-foot front setback variance on Cedar Point Road, and is forcing its removal

The art center plan of Vicki and Doug Niolet has been under consideration for weeks, evolving from a rezoning request that sparked controversy to a special exception application.

Tuesday, the Niolets agreed to cut the number of studios they'll have in the former McDonald Lumber Yard from 13 to 11. That way they'll have enough parking spaces off street for each of the studio slots, but still far less than the 21 required under the code.

In addition to shaving two studios from their plan, the Niolets agreed to council's demands that no classes or events be staged at the site between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. on school days. That provision is hoped to minimize the impact the facility will have in the area

The proposed facility is next door to Bay Catholic Elementary School, and across the street from Old City Hall, which houses the public works and building inspector's offices.

Tuesday's consideration of the matter brought a room full of supporters to urge approval, including several area artists.

While council members insisted they approve of the art center idea. they said they're worried it'll be such a success that it'll compound severe parking problems in the area Earlier, the proponents had said they had permission to use some of the Methodist Church's parking lot But church officials said in a letter that is not blanket permission designating their lot to the use of the center

We understand where the church is coming from," Doug Niolet said at Monday's workshop.

Council president Tad Black, who represents the area in question, insisted that the parking matter is critical in considering adding such a facility downtown. "Throughout the city, we have parking on sidewalks and street corners," said Black.

Council member Carleen Moran said if council approved the original plans with inadequate parking, "we're saying to the next person, yeah, it's okay, buy your building, come up with a good purpose, and worry about the parking later.

One New Orleans artist scoffed at the notion that Bay St Louis has substantial parking problems. We do not have a parking problem. The French Quarter problem. The French has," she said.

That added some fuel to the fire. with Moran saying: "That's why we take care of business," to ensure downtown Bay St. Louis isn't like the French Ouarter.

Black was indicating council would reject the plan entirely unless the Niolets agreed to the stipulations of operating hours, and cut back the number of studios that will be rented for area

Part of the building will be a gallery, devoted to a display of artworks for sale The studios will be functioning work areas for the arts, and classes are expected to be staged, as well as other events.

Black said city officials would reserve the right to re-evaluate the operation six months after it begins, potentially withdrawing the special exception which allows it in a residential zone

Meanwhile, property owner Charles Henderson's request for a 22-foot setback variance was disapproved outright. He'd built a parking shed next to his house about a year go, without a building permit.

Once Henderson applied for retroactive approval of his structure city officials found other problems with its construction.

Henderson said he's willing to take 10 feet off the carport, but he wants to add that to the front of his house.

Moran, who represents the area, said she had a great deal of sympathy for Henderson, but no room to approve the plan.

"I know you are in an uncomfortable situation, but I feel I need to tell you that you need to remove the structure ... If we allow you to do it, we're just opening the door for everybody else.

Henderson took the rejection well. "I'm not going to argue about it," he said. "How long do I have to take it down?"

Building Inspector Bill Carrigee said 30 days would be acceptable.

This year she pointed out Casino Magic CEO Marlin Torguson and other VIPs in the audience, and said. "Last year, I brought the music. This year, I brought the choir.

Carriere said all the people she brought with her supported more county funding for the Tourism Bureau.

Last year, supervisors raised from $18,000 to $25,000 the county's appropriation to the Bureau's operations, but Carriere asked for $50,000 for the coming year.

"It's the best investment this Board can make," said Carriere. She pointed out the six-page spread on Hancock County that recently appeared in Southwest Airline's in-flight magazine, and said Southern Living magazine also planned two more stories on the county next Spring.

Carriere said the Bureau's current "Go Fish" campaign is also a success, attracting more tourists to Hancock County than last year's award-winning contest.

The Bureau is financed mainly by a two percent lodging tax levied by hotels and bed and breakfast establishments, but Carriere said the potential for more funds for operations is limited unless Hancock County builds more hotels and motels.

She said the Bureau was able to tap into $53,000 in grant money available from the state, but if it had more matching funds available, it could have landed the total $150,000 that is available from the state.

Carriere said she also planned to ask Bay St. Louis to up its allocation to the Bureau, and that Waveland was providing "in-kind services" to operations and promised to do so next year.

Dr. Gaynell Roberts, director of Hancock County's community education program, came up after Carriere and asked supervisors to raise from $20,000 to $25,000 its support to the program. She said she also planned to ask the Bay-Waveland School District for $5,000 more next year.

Roberts said it was her longrange goal that eventually the program will become selfsupporting through fees charged for various evening classes, but the extra $10,000 over last year was needed to enable the program to offer more

She had figures showing that last year's program was highly successful, attracting 1,000 students in 76 courses, who paid an average course fee of $35. Roberts said that accounted for $30,000 in revenue's.

Roberts said a survey showed 45 percent of those taking courses came from the unincorporated areas of the county, 30 percent of students came from Bay St. Louis, 17 percent from Waveland, 10 percent from Diamondhead and about three percent came from outside the

Supervisors told both agency directors that they would give, serious consideration to their requests, but throughout the debate, District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman reminded them that the money situation for the coming year was tight

Julie Yates, a mother of three, cited the distance from her day care to Charle B. Murphy as an obstacle.

"I work and my babysitter is just two blocks from Gulfview," Yates said, "She keeps other children besides mine. She just can't drop everything and go the 24 miles to Charles B. Murphy to pick my children up if there is an emergency."

After receiving the parents' petition and hearing other parents offer similar concerns, the board accepted a recommendation from Superintendent Terry Randolph that the current Springwood students continue to enroll at Gulfview and that all new area residents and students in Waveland Apartments be enrolled at Charles B. Murphy.

Additionally, the board approved the appropriation of $25,000 to the Community Education Program for the 1998-99 school year. Program director, Gaynell Roberts presented an overview of the programs annual report and offered the new fall schedule of classes which will include courses in computer, basic adult education, financial, languages, and special interest areas such as dance.

In other matters, the board took bids for aerial herbicide and tree planting of two 16th Section parcels under advisement and approved a contract with Hancock Medical Center and Dr. James Crittenden for drug testing services

Overruns — Construction projects

contract for the second phase of construction, leaving that contract -at $2.7 million.

That's possible, inpart, because Hancock County supervisors have agreed to help the city pay for some of the work.

For the most part, the project is funded through a $5.5 million general obligation bond the city passed last year. Not considering engineering, legal fees and casement acquisitions, the city already has obligated some $4.2 million of that sum. That's before plans for a final phase of the construction have been put out for

As it stands, the $1.07 million contract the city has with Colom Construction Co. for the first phase of the work has reached almost $1.5 million, in a series of change orders.

In the latest change orders Chiniche outlined to council this week, he said shifting the watershed from one segment of the program to the contract now in progress will cost an extra $47,747 to the on-going contract

It'll save the other construction contract about $40,000, because smaller drainage pipes will be installed than originally anticipated, he told council

But the biggest change in the contract price came with a decision to install materials to add stability to the channel slopes in the project. Chiniche said he met last week with Favre, advising him the city needs to remove six inches of "unsuitable" sandy soils along the slopes, and replace it with six inches of clay material.

In addition, the plans now call for laying ungrouted rip-rap at intervals along the 9,000 linear feet of open channels, in hopes that water will be able to reach the channels without breaking down the slopes.

Even at that, Chiniche said there's a chance that there will be some such damages in the future. ...It does not guarantee that the channel slopes will not washout or blowout in other areas along the channel," Chiniche said of the proposed construction. Its $21,000 price tag, however, was much less than a $3.8 million sollution of adding concrete channel liner thoughout the sproject, a method that Chiniche said would be the best, and longest lasting one. Council agreed to the changes. but not without question how a series of change orders so far is going to impact other segments of the program. Officials have split the work into Ethree parts: Project A, Project B and Project C.

Project A was the initial segment of the program, dealing generally with the Spanish Acres area of the city. Project C, involving work mainly in the downtown area, was giust awarded to Construction this week, for the $$2.7 million negotiated price. Project C, which includes another residential section of the city, has vet to be put up for bids.

Lampley, who represents the Project B area, said Monday she's afraid there won't be enough money left in the kitty to pay for the third and final phase.

Even as fellow council members sought to assure her that project would be construction as well, Favre made his statements about the tight squeeze the city the work.

weren't the only extra costs the city is facing with construction

Marty Dove of Brown & Mitchell Engineering, said unexpected difficulties in pile driving continue. Just the opposite of the drainage soil problem, workers at the pier site are finding heavy clay material under the Mississippi Sound instead of sandy soils. That's necessitated extra equipment and a different technique for installing workers will extend the project another 580 feet into the Sound, leaving the city with a span that's some 10 or 12 feet longer than the

Council member James Thriffiley said the contractor charged the city $750 for a sign at the construction site misspelling his name. "They are responsible for getting the names

Meanwhile, yet another upcoming construction project has hit a snag, the mayor apprised council. Construction of the longawaited bike path and pedestria walkway hasn't met the full approval of CSX railroad officials, who have been asked for Construction of the original drainage package was delayed for months, while city officials and the rail company argued over rights-of-way along the tracks. The rail company at one point insisted that the city close some vehicular crossings, if CSX were to agree to the easements.

That confrontation finally settled in the city's favor, after city officials found some old documents that effectively gave the city permission to maintain the drainage adjoining the tracks. The issue of rail crossings was put off the agenda.

But it's back on the agenda now, said Favre. "It appears we'll need to gear up again for another battle with them," he said. "They not doing anymore, period, until we do some

Bay St. Louis police focus efforts on youth-related issues

The Bay St. Louis Police Department has been in a high gear planning and continuing education mode to improve their assistance to the local schools by sending officers to youth at risk seminars, working with retailers on the new tobacco and alcohol laws and various other youth-related issues. Sgt. Jim Martin was recently assigned to the Community Relations Unit of the Bay St. Louis Police Department's Special Operations Division, under the command of Chief of Detectives

Tom Burleson. Martin is making the adjustment from a 20-plus year patrol officer into his new role as Housing Authority Officer and Tobacco/Alcohol Officer. With this dual hat Sgt. Martin is changing his primary focus to crime prevention and education. He works daily with the authority to screen applicants, enforce Housing Authority rules and city and state laws. He works daily with the children of" the area, especially the Save Our Children Center presenting classes. Recently, he arranged for Anderson Hall, Harrison County DARE officer, to speak with the children, followed by the former Miami Dolphin football player, Keith Warren, who helped the children learn to make better life choices because they had the right attitude. There are normally 40-90 children attending the SOC sessions. These group sessions will be followed up with sessions on drug and gang awareness, bicycle safety and other pertinent issues that relate to various age

The newest challenge Martin faces is educating local retailers in the new tobacco and alcohol changes that were adopted by the State Legislature and became effective July 1. It is extremely important that the retailers assist law enforcement officers in their fight to prevent underage children from having direct purchasing access to substances that are illegal to their age group. Martin is concentrating his efforts with retailers through city-sponsored seminars. He also meets with civic groups and organizations and will work with his unit peers at each local school to get this message across to the students. If you are a presenter who would volunteer time to assist Sgt. Martin with his SOC classes, call him at 228-463-7125. Starting his 25th year in law enforcement, Sgt. Don Watson is a man with a mission to improve the situation for at-risk kids and their families and the quality of campus life in Bay St.

As the city's juvenile officer for four years, Watson is assigned to work with each school in Bay St. Louis to handle all crime issues that occur in the schools as required by the School Violence Act.

However, Watson is available to assist the schools keep problems from reaching law enforcement stages. He is a firm advocate of prevention and education. Sgt. Watson works closely with Juvenile Investigator Kenny Hurt of the Hancock County Sheriff's Office, school counselors and Youth Court officers and officials. He also works with the Bay P.D.'s Detective Section when outside crime involved juveniles. Watson teaches regular classes throughout the systems at various age levels. He uses the "Me-ology" program which emphasizes that children are too good for drugs. His primary targets are sixth grade students. The driver's education students are required to participate in his classes on alcohol abuse and DUI penalties. Annually Watson, with the help of other Community Relations officers, makes an all-out push in drug education during the national observance of October's Red Ribbon Week. Sgt. Watson recently returned from a special seminar presented to school administrators, counselors and law enforcement personnel assigned to work with children on gangs, cults and other deviate groups in the school setting with Dr. John Purvis, USM Continuing Education Program. "Continuing education, such as this seminar, helps me to keep on top of any activity that may cause potential problems in our local schools. It helps authorities to keep alert for activities that signal potential gang activity," said Watson. He continued, "Gang recruiting is beginning earlier and earlier, and we will begin our intervention education targeting fourth, fifth and sixth graders. "When parents drop their children off at their first day of the new school year they can be assured that the Bay St. Louis Police Department will be there to assist in making safe environments for learning," said Mayor Eddie Favre.

'OCEANS ALIVE' making educational difference

The Naval Oceanographic Office announces a new educational initiative called OCEANS ALIVE (Oceanographic Career Enhancement and Naval Science: Adventurous Learning in Variable Environments).

Focusing on the National education Goal 4 which states, 'By the year 2000, United States will be first in the world in math and science achievement." the OCEANS ALIVE mission is to inform and interest local students and teachers in the field of naval oceanography.

The goal of the two three-day trips aboard the USNS Henson is to encourage students to pursue careers in oceanography and to make them aware of the math and science skills needed to obtain such a career.

Hancock High student Eddie Moe explains, "I hope to learn much about the ocean, including the physical, geographical Fellow student Patrick Rowley hopes to parlay the experience into a career path. "I feel that I will enjoy this program because I want to be a U.S. Naval Meteorologist. I hope to gain more hands-on information of being on a naval ship, oceanography and meteorology," explains Rowley.

One teacher and three students were selected from eight local high schools including Hancock High, Harrison Central, Pascagoula High, Picayune Memorial High, Stone County High, Pearl River Central from Mississippi and Slidell High and Mandeville High from Louisiana.

OLA to begin 28th year

Students' applications described science classes taken, math classes taken, science fair participation, outside school interests, educational goals, career goals, and what they hope to gain.

After the trip, the students and teachers have a postgathering at Stennis Space Center to create a web page concerning the things they learned.

Guided by NAVOCEANO surveyors as subject instruction, the students will describe the classes, procedures they followed, and data results. Teachers will also discuss ways to weave their OCEANS ALIVE experiences into science and math classroom instruction.

The Naval Oceanographic Office, approximately 1,000 military and civilians, acquires and analyzes global ocean and littoral data to provide specialized, mission-essential products and services for the Navy's fleet.

Ladner basketball camp passes on knowledge of the game

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

If you ask a native Hancock Countian "Who invented the game of basketball?" the answer might be Dr. James Naismith or Adolph Rupp. However, the answer most likely would be a Ladner.

Hancock County has had its share of great basketball players and most of them have had the last name of Badner. Just some of the greats that bring back memories are Wendell Ladner, Berlin Ladner, J. Larry Ladner, J. Roland Ladner, and Michael Ray Ladner.

Recently, for one week at the end of July at the Brother Peter Memorial Gymnasium, on the campus of St. Stanislaus High School, the Ladner clan passed on their knowledge, skill, expertise, and experience of the game to boys and girls of all ages.

This was the 11th annual Ladner School of Basketball on the Gulf Coast. The camp is conducted by Michael Ray Ladner and Jay Ladner. The two cousins have put on the camp for the past 11 years in hope of instilling a love for the game that they both share.

Michael Ray Ladner is a graduate of Hancock North Central High School and played at Phillips College. He is a former assistant coach with the University of Memphis Lady Tigers. There he teamed up with another former HNC standout, Joye Lee-McNelis. Lee-McNelis is the head coach of the Tigers. Ladner is the current head coach of the Hancock Hawks and is preparing to start his second year at the school.

Jay Ladner, a very familiar face in Hancock County all his life, graduated from Oak Grove High School in Hattiesburg. He later played with the University of Southern Mississippi Golden Eagles. Ladner was a member of the team that won the N.I.T. National Championship in 1987.

Jay is the current head coach at St. Stanislaus High School where he has led the Rocks back into basketball prominence. His 1996 team made the state tournament for the first time since

The two Ladners were assisted at the camp by an excellent staff of coaches. In addition to Jay and Michael Ray, there were the staffs of SSC, Hancock, and Gulfport. The SSC staff consisted of Jerry Spell, Errol Gauff, and Wil Seymour. The Hancock staff contained Sandy Albright and Steve Austin. The Gulfport staff was head coach Bryan Caldwell, Tori Holloway, and Francisco "Boo" Hardy.

The camp consisted of 117 boys and 34 girls from ages five to seniors in high school.

Jay Ladner stated, "The reason that we put the camp is for the kids. We try to give them an opportunity to do some things that they would not have the ability to do somewhere else. There is not a camp like this in our area. Plus, we have a great staff assembled to help accomplish this goal."

The camp opened on Monday night with David Hannan's ball-handling clinic. Hannan, a former coach, travels the country putting on the clinics at various universities.

On one night, former Picayune Maroon Tide coach and teacher for the University of Southern Mississippi Department of Athletic Administration, J. Larry Ladner talked to the campers. Larry Ladner, Jay's father, stated, "During my professional career, I had the opportunity of traveling across the nation and world speaking at camps and conducting basketball clinics. I have no reservation in saying that this camp is the most outstanding camp of its kind in the nation.'

Parents seem to agree with Coach Ladner's sentiments for they now travel from near and far to let their children attend the camp( Jay Ladner said that he has received inquiries about the camp from as far away as Jacksonville, Florida, and Amarillo, Texas.

One mother, Kathy Whitlock, stated, "This is my first year to be associated with the camp. My son, Max Sutton, is eight years old. He absolutely loves it. The camp may very well spark an interest in sports for him."

"I see him developing skills that he had not had prior to the camp. He is interested in the game now and is learning how to pass the ball and how to handle it. The camp just has been a great boost for him all the way around."

On another night, former coach J. Roland Ladner, Michael Ray's father, spoke to the campers. Roland Ladner is Mississippi's all-time winningest

*STARTS FRIDAY

John Anderson

County music's John Anderson makes a magical appearance

country star John Anderson in concert Friday, Aug. 7 at 9 p.m. in the Magic Entertainment Complex. Tickets are on sale for $15, $20 and $25 at the Casino Magic Gift Shop and all Ticketmaster locations.

"Nine lives like a cat, dumb like a fox," "The First New Tra-ditionalist," "The Consummate Hat Act," One of the best voices of his generation," these are all handles that have been hung on John Anderson since he first stormed to the top of the country charts in the early 1980s with hits like "Wild and Blue," "Swingin" (the Country Music Associaton's 1983 Single of the Year) and "Black Sheep." Through the years, Anderson has enriched country's vast lexicon and insinuated his way under listeners' skin and into their hearts with classics like "Seminole Wind" (the title tune from Anderson's double platinum 1992 album), "Straight Tequila Night," "Money In The Bank," "When It comes To You," "1959," "I'm Just an Old Chunk Of Coal" and "Would You Catch

A Falling Star." Once again, in the late 1990s, Anderson is back in a big way. Takin' The Country Back showcases this acclaimed master doing the kind of music he has always done best. His debut Mercury album took its place alongside earlier masterpieces like "Wild And Blue" (1983) and "Seminole Wind" (1992) as another landmark achievement from a long and storied career.

Anderson's homespun canniness, clear-eyed emphathy and sly-dog humor enliven each and every one of the 11 cuts on Takin' The Country Back — six of which he co-wrote. The tracks run the emotional gammut from lighthearted celebration ("Somebody Slap Me," his debut Mercury single) to the sad. heart-wrenching pathos of "Who's Who" (penned by Michael White and Wesley Dennis).

Anderson's captivating drawl, wry humor and playful

Casino Magic will present sassiness are in full-blown splendor on "Somebody Slap Me," co-written by Bob McDill and Roger Murrah.

Anderson points out that the sense of renewal and creative inspiration he tapped into while making Takin' The Country Back isn't derived from magic formulas or stylistic back flips.

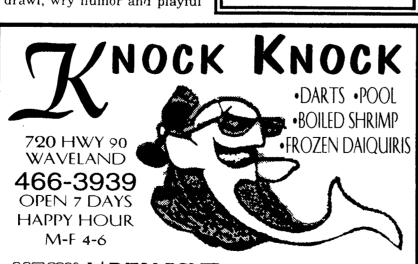

Above all else that you can say about John Anderson, he is what he sings. One of a career military man's six children, this third generation Floridian arrived in Nashville in 1971, shortly after his high school graduation, driving a beat-up Volkswagen.

He crashed at his older sisplace, played the lower Broadway honky tonks and worked various odd jobs, including putting shingles on the roof of the then-new Grand Olde Opry House.

For more information, call the Casino Magic Entertainment hotline 1-800-5-MAGIC-5, ext. 4015.

Must be at least 21 years of age to attend concert at Casino Magic.

Clark shuts down leasing company

Secretary of State Eric Clark has ordered a San Diego-based leasing company and its Mississippi affiliates to stop the sale of unregistered securities and will seek substantial fines for violations of state law.

a large number in the Laurel area. More than $690,000 invested in unregistered securities is under investigation by Clark's office. Individual investments range from $10,000 to over $85,000.

Under the cease and desist order, the parties are prohibited from engaging in the sale of securities in Mississippi. The Secretary of State's Office may assess administrative penalties against violators. Criminal penalities for each violation of the Mississippi Securities Act range from a fine of not more than $25,000 to five years in prison, Clark said.

"These were unregistered securities, sold by unregistered agents through an improper relationship with a dealer," Clark said. "In addition, the investors in this case were charged exorbitant commissions without being informed as the law requires. All Mississippi investors, and especially our senior citizens, deserve confidence that their investments are fully protected under the law."

Under the alleged scheme. Alliance Leasing sought to raise capital through the sale of unregistered securities. Alliance Leasing contracted with Prime Atlantic, Inc., a Florida-based marketing company, to sell "units of joint venture interest" on its behalf in Mississippi. Investors were told the money would be used to purchase business equipment, which would then be leased to third parties at a

The securities broker, Prime Atlantic, was not registered with the state. Under Mississippi law, all securities, brokerdealers, and broker-dealer agents must be registered with the Secretary of State's Office.

Investors were promised a return of 16% deriving from the proceeds of leased office equipment. However, investors were not informed that 30% of the money they invested went to Prime Atlantic in the form of commission. Investors were also not informed that some Alliance Leasing representatives have disciplinary histories involving similar schemes for violations of the securities laws of other states. The two agents named in the order are Larry Sherman, 55, owner of Senior Financial Services of Laurel, and John Lang, 46, of Brewton, Ala. The Secretary of State's Office also seeks to revoke Mr. Sherman's license to sell securities in Mississippi.

Clark said investors should ask questions before they invest. He said any questions or complaints about investments should be directed to the Secretary of State's Enforcement Divisicn at 601-359-1633 or 800-804-6364.

Mississippi exports to China veed $17 million in 1997

Additionally, as a condition 228-864-2541.

Mississippi businesses and workers have a huge stake in maintaining normal U.S.-China trade relations, according to a U.S. Chamber of Commerce international trade report, showing that Mississippi's exports to China exceeded $17 million last year.

"These strong export numbers indicate that maintaining normal trade relations with China is critical to Mississippi," said U.S. Chamber President and CEO Thomas J. Donohue. "The annual debate over China's trade status hurts American companies' ability to compete in the global marketplace."

Mississippi export to China totaled $17,296,875, ranking it 38th out of 54 states and territories.

Donohue noted that in 1997, the United States exported approximately $12.8 billion in goods and services to China. "The evidence is clear — stable U.S.-China trade relations will open markets for U.S. exports and generate more jobs for Mississippi workers.

"It's important for Mississippi's congressional delegation to understand the economic link between their state and our country's most promising export markets," said Donohue, noting that the U.S./ Chamber is leading a grassroots campaign to urge members of Congress to support normal trade relations with China.

The U.S. Chamber report is based on statistics compiled by the Office of Trade and Economic Analysis of the U.S. Department of Commerce and the Census Bureau.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce is the world's largest business federation, representing more than three million businesses and organizations of every size, sector and region.

system, rather than to City Council.

Regulations covering new construction with the historic district-include insuring evaluation potential archaeological resources.

Whatever's built should be "visually compatible" with the buildings and environment at issue, including height, gross volume, proportion between width and height of the facades. proportions and relationships between doors and windows, materials, trims, and roof design.

While no specific architectural style would be required, "existing rhythm created by existing building masses and spaces between them shall be preserved,' the proposal states.

Meanwhile, alterations to existing structures would have to have an appeal route in the court structure. "Exterior alterations shall not affect the architectural character or historic quality of a landmark and shall not destroy the significance" of the site.

For demolition applications, the commission would consider the individual significance of the structure, its contribution to the architectural character of the district and neighboring property values, and the difficulty or impossibility of reproducing specific designs, materials aor details.

Before a demolition permit can be obtained, the applicant has to seek approval of replacement plans, with completed working drawings for at least the foundation.

And the applicant would have to prove financial ability to complete the project.

One section of the proposed be compatible with the original ordinance makes provisions for a claim of unreasonable economic hardship in complying with the regulations.

But to prove that, the owner would have to provide an affidavit detailing the price paid for the property, the relationship between the buyer and seller, and the mortgage history of the property.

Also, the commission would require knowing the current market value of the property, equity in current used and alternative uses, past and current income and expense statements over a two-year period, past capital expenditures during the current ownership, appraisals of the property over a two year period, and income and property tax factors affecting the property.

The ordinance would cover "demolition by neglect" as well, to prevent properties from literally falling down due to lack of care. If the commission determines that's happening, it can force repairs to begin within 30 days.

Other provisions allow for demolitions in cases where structures are deemed a public hazard, and too far deteriorated to repair or restore.

Civil penalties also are outlined in the plan. If a person builds or demolishes, alters or relocates a structure without permission, they will be required to restore it to its original appearance. Civil penalties and criminal prosecution are possible.

If a company is caught doing unauthorized demolition work, its license will be revoked for five vears. No permits of any kind would be issued on the property for three years.

There are several sections dealing with the commission's powers and responsibilities. One provision would allow the commission to buy property with money other than City appropriations.

Potential conflicts of interest also are dealt with in the proposal. Since the city may have a small pool of residents with the needed experience for service on the commission, such as history, architecture, archaeology, potential problem exists.

Members of the commission would be allowed to contract with applicants for an application's approval, but they would have to disqualify themselves from the discussions. The city could appoint a substitute member for dealing with a particular case, under those circumstances.

If any commission member repeatedly finds himself in a series of disqualifications, the chairman would "encourage the member to resign....Failing this resignation, and if the commission member continued to enter into conflict of interest situations with the commission," City Council would be encouraged to remove the

The proposed ordinance would not impact interior alterations.

Area historians and preservationists have long worried. that Bay St. Louis, with a vast base of historical structures, has no regulations on the books to deal with demolitions and substantial alterations to such properties.

It's likely that the proposed ordinance, however, will remain in a proposal stage for months to come, as City Council debates possible changes to its provisions.

Officials have said such an ordinance likely would be adopted, however, when the city finishes its comprehensive plan and adopts a new zoning ordinance.

Sexual battery charges

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

A Bay St. Louis resident was arrested Wednesday in Pascagoula by Pascagoula Detective Richard Horn on a warrant issued by the Bay St. Louis Police Department, Bay Detective Lt. Tom Burleson said.

"Daniel E. Bourgeois, 38, 504 Spanish Acres Drive, Bay St. Louis was arrested and charged with two counts of sexual battery. He was arrested in Pascagoula on a warrant issued by Bay Police. Bond for Bourgeois was set at $50,000," Burleson said.

The alleged sexual battery charges against Bourgeois stem from incidents in the Bay during June, Burleson said, and his hearing is scheduled for August 12 in Bay Municipal Court.
